Let's Start!

Would you prefer to go out for dinner tonight?

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe personal and regional eating habits and cooking in a range of communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about healthy habits.
- I can talk about what is necessary.
- I can talk about what is preferable.

Ask your partner:

- What strong preferences do you have when it comes to food or leisure activities?
- Why would you rather eat or do these things?

Let's Explore!

Grammy* still likes to cook!

* There are many words used to address your grandmother like "Grammy", Nanna, Nona, Granny or Grams.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

To the young, 83 seems like a lifetime away. It also sounds ancient. Do people at such advanced ages still have meaningful lives? Most of my older relatives are over 90. My grandmother still shops for food and cooks. She would prefer to eat food she likes and prepares herself. Grammy eats sparingly, but her diet is well-rounded. She still enjoys a glass of wine now and then. She would rather keep busy. Her doctor cheers her on saying 'use it or lose it'!

Of course Grammy has to rest more now. She's going to have to take medication. She's going to have to see her doctor more often. She's got to let someone else do the heavy cleaning. Otherwise, she doesn't have to do anything she doesn't want to do. I can't say the same.

I offered Grammy some DVDs, but she would prefer to read. She'd choose a crossword over television any day. She'd rather have it quiet. "Silence," she says, "is golden!"

Let's Practice!

Unfortunately, now that Grammy's getting on*, things have got to change.

*to "get on" means to be growing older and frailer.

Instructions: Select the correct answer to complete each sentence.

- Of course Grammy's _____ more now.
(got to rest / has got to rest / got to arrest)
- She's _____ to take medication.
(is going to have / got to have / going to have)
- She's going _____ her doctor more often.
(have to see / to have to see / has to see)
- She's _____ someone else do the heavy cleaning.
(has got to let / go to let / got to let)
- Otherwise, she _____ do anything she doesn't want to do.
(does have to / doesn't have to / doesn't got to)

Let's Practice!

Grammy still eats well.

Learning Points

Expressing What is Necessary

You use expressions like: You have got to ... or You're going to have to ... or You need to ... to express what is necessary.

You can use the following to express what is necessary:

- You have got to ...
- I'm going to have to ...
- You need to ...

Examples:

- She needs to get regular exercise.

Would Rather for What is Preferable

You use the expressions would rather + verb or would prefer ... to express a preference.

You can also use contractions like: 'd rather, 'd prefer, 'd choose.

- When you use would rather or would prefer to, you are comparing two things, whether the second is mentioned or not.

Example:

She would rather read a book.

- You can also use would rather ... than to express a comparison between two things.

Example:

She'd rather eat her own food than someone else's.

Examples:

- She would prefer to eat food she likes and prepares herself.
- She would rather keep busy.
- She'd choose a book over TV any day.
