Let's Start!

My grandmother is an interesting person!

Learning Outcome

Describe routines and regular activities in a wider range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What do you know about your grandparents?
- What stories have they told you?
- What stories have you been told about them?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about staying healthy.
- I can discuss experiences I've had or haven't had.
- I can offer advice and solutions and talk about what is preferable.

Let's Explore!

I would rather not think about ageing.

* "Ageing" means getting older, especially when you are no longer young.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

My grandmother has lived a long and healthy life. She has never had a job, but she has worked hard at home. She cleaned, cooked and did laundry for five children. That kept her busy.

Grammy has never taken a fitness class. She would prefer to go for a long walk. She tells me I ought to shut down my computer more often and let my mind rest. I should spend less time sitting. I had better get out and walk to keep my legs strong. I know she's right. I would rather check my tweets or be on social media in the evening. I'd prefer to walk at the mall.

Some millennials, like myself, would rather not think about ageing. We've just started our lives! We haven't considered that constantly sitting in front of screens isn't good for us. That always being in a car has already made us soft. If we want to still be healthy as we age, we'd better make some changes now.

Let's Practice!

Offering Advice and Solutions

You can use had better ('d better) instead of should or ought to, especially in spoken English, to express that you think it would be sensible or advisable to do something. You do not use had better to speak about the past.

Examples:

- I had better get out and walk to keep my legs strong.
- We'd better make some changes now.
